

June 2016 - Organizing a Girls' Getaway

Here are a few things to discuss with your group and get the plans underway:

- Budget
- Date and how long?
- Where do you want to go?
Shopping? Wine tasting? Theater? Beach?
- Transportation – flying vs driving

Once you have decided where you are going, then you girls can plan accordingly. If you are driving, you can decide who takes what. You can pack a few coolers to keep your budget smaller and sometimes there is less of a hassle when you are bringing items from home. You can always dedicate one person to do the shopping and then the group splits the cost per person.

It is helpful if someone has been in that area before so they are familiar with the city and what it has to offer. They can be the tour guide.

A few tips: you can use the web to search sales, entertainment and dining options. I have used www.tripadvisor.com a lot over the last few trips and have found it to be very useful. If you are traveling with a larger group, you may want to call the restaurant ahead of time and give them a heads up and see if they can accommodate your group.

Enjoy your bonding time!

Happy Organizing!
